STATE CAPITOL NEWS

By MELVIN LORD
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SACRAMENTO, Cal., July 2—(UP)—Despite objections of the relief committee of the county supervisors association, the transfer of unemployment relief administration from the state to the counties will go ahead, at least on a gradual basis, it was indicated.

In a series of meetings with Gov. Frank F. Merriam, the supervisors objected to the transfer plan principally because of suggested supervision by the SRA. State officials countered with the explanation that they only desired competent workers free from local politics.

It was indicated that at least 20 counties were ready to take over the relief administration as proposed by the governor, and other counties were expected to agree.

Final details of the transfer were to be worked out by Charles I. Schottland, SRA chief, before he resigns to take over direction of the Federated Jewish Charities in Los Angeles county.

The feud between Chairman Richard E. Collins of the board of equalization and Controller Ray L. Riley, ex-officio board member and former chairman, continued at a steady pace.

Collins amplified previous charges of irregularities in Riley's administration, and the controller insisted the accusations were "too malicious to answer." He ordered an audit to prove that Collins' charges were unwarranted.

Meanwhile, the board also became further involved in a controversary with Assemblyman Leon M. Donihue, chairman of the committee investigating asserted liquor graft and corruption. The board members refused to appear before the committee until it came to Sacramento, after having gone to Los Angeles where the committee failed to call on them to testify.

Gasoline taxes collected by the state increased 3.1 per cent during May to bring the total income from that source up to $3,677,425 for the month. The increase in gasoline sales, starting last December, has continued steadily since that time, the board of equalization reported.

The sale of a $5,000,000 block of state veterans welfare bonds brought a premium of $87,550. Money derived from the sale will be used to continue the home and farm purchase program for the veterans, and officials said that most of the fund would be spent "within the next six months."

Success of a new plan of reducing the speed of highway traffic on the ridge route may prompt California highway patrol officers to try the system on other highways which have a high death rate.

The plan includes the use of checking stations at each end of a 62½-mile stretch of the ridge route. When a driver enters the control section he is given a card showing the time he checked in. This card is turned in at the other end of the stretch and if the elapsed time indicates a speed in excess of the 45-mile limit, the driver is warned.

While officials cannot arrest an operator for speeding on the basis of this system, it has had the effect of reducing the average speed of travel by 10 miles an hour. Accidents also were reduced to a minimum during the first week's trial.

DECREASE SHOWN IN GASOLINE TAX

SACRAMENTO, Cal., July 2—(UP)—Gasoline tax returns in California have dropped steadily the past three months, despite the arrival of vacation weather which ordinarily increases travel on the highways.

The state board of equalization reported a total collection of $3,677,425 from the gasoline tax for the month of May. This compared with $3,936,294 collected in April and $4,404,051 in March.

In view of the fact that gasoline taxes usually increase with the approach of summer, and remain high until the fall months cause motorists to stay at home, officials were puzzled by the steady decline this year.

The only explanation they could offer was that the gasoline prices soared after several winter and early spring months of low prices. The high cost of gasoline, they believed, was an important factor in curbing the late spring activities of motorists. They can think of no other excuse for the slump in tax returns.

An optimistic note was sounded by Chairman Richard E. Collins, however, when he pointed out that returns for May of this year were 3.1 per cent, or $110,452, higher than the gasoline taxes collected for the corresponding month last year.

This he considered an indication of improved business conditions.

There has been a steady improvement in the tax for the past 17 months, he said. Ever since December, 1934, the figures for each month have shown an increase over those for the corresponding month of the preceding year.

The gain in April, however, was 7½ per cent over the tax total collected in April, 1935, while the gain in May was only 3.1 per cent greater than the amount obtained during the corresponding month of 1935.

While gasoline tax returns slumped from month to month, the revenue derived from the two-cents-a-gallon levy on beer and wine showed its usual seasonal increase.

The state obtained $176,446 from that tax last month, compared with $167,493 collected on beverage sales during April.

Beer sales were responsible for the increase, according to Ray Edgar, Los Angeles member of the board. Taxes were collected on the basis of distribution of 7,341,564 gallons of beer last month, compared with the sale of 6,540,443 gallons in April. The sale of wine dropped from 1,747,413 gallons in April to 1,393,082 gallons in May.

Establishment of Hunting Areas is Sought by State

SACRAMENTO, Cal., July 2—(UP)—California sportsmen have been urged to join in a campaign by means of which the state counld establish large, permanent hunting areas on public lands.

Pointing out that few sportsmen have access to private shooting grounds, Sturzenacker said:

"The inroads of agriculture, the continued development of cattle raising territory and the improvement of the range has continually reduced the lands upon which the sportsman can hunt.

"Today very little private property is usable for open hunting. Either the game has been driven out or the land is posted against trespass. About the only place left for the sportsman to shoot is upon the so called public domain. In California this consists of the unreserved and unappropriated United States government lands and those belonging to the state."

The land chief said that of the land granted to the state for school purposes, approximately 1,000,000 acres was left unsold, of which "probably half this amount is unfit for anything except recreational purposes."

"While the office of the division of state lands is charged with the sale of this property, we frankly have made no effort to sell it, carrying out the policy of the governor that this remaining land should be in some way preserved for natural life and wilderness areas," Sturzenacker said.

"It is hoped that the legislature will appropriate a sum of money sufficient to be placed in the school fund and free this property from the school trust.

"The land within the state belonging to the United States government amounts to some 16 million acres. This land is mostly of recreational value and about the same character as the state lands.

According to American Medical association reports, 7,709,942 persons, one every four seconds throughout the year, were admitted to the nation's 6,246 hospitals during 1935.

Calneva Liquor Hearing Is to be Held Today

The case of the alleged liquor law violation at Calneva lodge a short time ago will come up before Judge Bliss at Tahoe City this afternoon at three o'clock. District Attorney Lowell J. Sparks of Placer county will represent the people.

Russell B. Farley, board of equalization agent in this district, stated Monday that R. B. Joyner, another liquor control agent in the Truckee district, had requested the resort obtain a license in 1935, and they had refused. H. G. Kerrigan, in charge of the district out of the Marysville office, also asked McKay, part owner, to secure a permit, and he also refused.

Mr. Farley stated two surveys had been made of the lodge on the state line by a licensed engineer and it was found the line ran through the building.

The arrest last week was made by Mr. Farley, when he found liquor served to Dan Greeley, D. W. Ingram and Ed Beck, all liquor control agents, seated at a table in California. The complaint was signed against George Polus, charging him with serving liquor without a legal permit from the state.

State Takes First Place In Re-Employment

With a commanding lead over all states in the nation, California forged into first place during the month of May in returning men and women to employemt, surpassing its April competitors—New York and Illinois—by wide margins.

This is the announcement today of Roy S. Stockton, director of the California State Employemnt service, following receipt of national placement figures from W. Frank Persons, director, United States Employemnt service, Washington, D. C.

The statistics, according to Stockton, show that 19,526 persons were placed in employment jobs paying prevailing rates of wages by his state-wide organization of 24 branches. This compares with New York's 18,631 figure, and Illinois 17,856 placement total.

The totals are exclusive of placements in security wage jobs, Stockton said.

While California's employment showing is its greatest thus far this year, the employemnt service official points out, the national totals of the public employemnt service indicate highest levels, for all states were combined in May.

Placements in private jobs by all states employemnt services, the greatest in 23 months, amounted to 131,781, a gain of 20.7 per cent over April and 17.5 per cent over May, 1935, said Stockton.

Placements in public employment openings, he declared, reached the highest level since inauguration of the present United States Employment service in 1933, reaching a total of 243,380 for the month, a gain of 21.1 per cent over April, and 54.1 per cent over May, 1935.

It was also revealed that for the entire state, 180,823 modernization notes were insured, totaling $57,665,219.

BONDED DEBT SETS NEW HIGH RECORD

SACRAMENTO, Cal., July 2—(UP)—The bonded indebtedness of the state, counties and municipalities jumped nearly $42,000,000 to a record high total of $934,834,310 during the past year, Controller Ray L. Riley revealed today in his annual report of financial transactions.

Cities owe more than half of the bonded debt, or $457,831,075, while counties are second with $294,249,734 and the state third with $182,753,500.

At the end of the previous fiscal year, cities owed $451,360,611, counties $284,423,109 and the state $157,211,500.

The funded debt of the state and its political subdivisions rose to 16 per cent of the total assessment roll of $5,783,997,459 (B), Riley said in pointing out that the inclusion of utility property in the local tax basis for 1935 was not sufficient to raise the state assessment roll to the 1930 level of $6,173,935,262.

"The rise of $41,839,089 in bonded debt during 1935 was caused chiefly by $24,000,000 in unemployemnt relief bonds and the remainder was veterans' home building and farm bonds," Riley said. "Total net increase in the state's debt was $25,542,000 during 1935, while that of counties was $9,826,625. The cities were lowest with an addition of $6,470,464."

With San Francisco's bonded indebtedness of $173,082,700 included with that of other counties, the total county indebtedness amounts to $467,332,434, of which $199,408,100 was listed as general bonds, $193,596,986 as school district bonds, and $74,327,348 as special and assessment district bonds.

San Francisco's indebtedness is included among that of other cities to obtain the municipality total of $457,831,075.

THE STATE'S LIQUOR SITUATION

One very probable effect of the current investigations into the liquor control situation may be an intensified agitation for local option laws, in the opinion of many California editors.

But, regardless of the outcome, the ugly charges of corruption, maladministration and favoritism must be sifted to the bottom, it was agreed.

"Evidently," notes the Calexio Chronicle, "the liquor business is getting back into its old stride again. It was such disclosures of crookedness as are now coming to light in California that caused many voters to favor prohibition in the days before the 18th amendment was passed. Apparently it just isn't in the cards for the liquor interests as a whole to operate on a straight, legitimate level as other lines of industry are conducted. Out of the present scandals, one fact is apparent. The sooner we take the management of alcohol manufacture and trade out of the hands of the board of equalization, and place it under control of a special commission named for that purpose, the better it will be for all concerned."

"At present," said the San Francisco Chronicle, "the whole situation is in a maze of charges and counter-charges, criminations and recriminations. Men confessing bribery assert higher-ups had knowledge of the fact and did nothing about it. These charges must be sifted to the bottom. There must be no covering up, no stop orders. The people demand the facts regardless of where they lead or whom they involve."

The Santa Cruz News "has seen many such charges uttered with reference to administrative bodies, only to peter out when sifted to the bottom. But enough has developed, to this paper's mind, to indicate a few things: The drys of California are being furnished with some very effective ammunition; the chance of a local option law passing by popular vote is being enhanced; the failure of the state board of equalization's pet measure to double its members' salaries and perpetuate themselves in office is certain at the November election."

"Governor Merriam," remarks the Santa Barbara Daily News, "should bring these ugly rumors and serious charges to a climax by ordering the attorney general's office to spare neither effort or money in determining the truth. If there are those who are guilty, high or low in authority, they should be punished, the department should be given a thorough house-cleaning and an end brought to a situation which savors of the days of the old corner saloon, when graft, corruption and misused political power were rampant. Likewise, if these charges are not true, the accused should be proved innocent."

"The public wisely should withold judgment," according to the Pasadena Star News, "until proof of guilt or innocence is established beyond reasonable doubt. Unquestionably there is some guilt—just how much remains to be disclosed. But it is quite important to protect innocent persons against all accusations, just as it is important to expose and punish the guilty. The truth should be available in a short time. Meanwhile the people of California should insist upon a sweeping change in the state liquor administration, to the end that these abuses may be eliminated."

"All of California's liquor control troubles," the Colusa Sun-Herald believes, "seem to boil down to one basic disease. There has been too much secrecy. The back door attitude of prohibition days has lingered on. Obviously our solution is to cure that disease at the core, since so long as it remains, the most perfect superstructure of control that men could devise would crumble. . . . In other words, the essential thing is to keep the bright, cleansing glare of publicity constantly trained on matters that have been shrouded in too much secrecy ever since prohibition led them into dark and devious pathways."

1776 — INDEPENDENCE — 1936

The glorious Fourth!

Colorful parades, waving flags and blaring bands; the joyous din of happy crowds and cracking, booming fireworks; romping children, and picnics and midsummer heat; and then, at night, bright streaks of light across the sky.

How glad America is to be young and free still on this, the one-hundred-and-sixtieth anniversary of our birth to freedom—how glad to have before us a promise of abundance and new glory.

But as men pause to remember the beginnings of our great nation, there is solemn understanding of the liberties we so cherish, and quiet realization that it may be America's part to save them for mankind.

More than a century and a half ago in historic Independence hall in Philadelphia, the courageous funders first gave voice to these liberties as the creed of a whole people. Rulers of an autocratic world were aghast at their audacity, and the oppressed populations of other countries cheered their bold leadership.

Dictatorships hold sway in the world today. Men have lost their freedom after only brief tastes of it, and war threatens. But come what may elsewhere—war, chaos, autocracy—America proposes to hold aloof from it and to preserve those liberties set forth in the Declaration of Independence.

". . . We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness. That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed. . . ."

Alive still and fresh in their successful dignity, in their simple, straightforward sincerity, these words stand today as the greatest single expression of the true spirit of America.

The Fourth of July

BEING ABOVE THE LAND

Under the heavy, great skies of Holland, the flat countryside lies cut by canals and bordered with pollarded willows through which one sees the low meadows green with wet grass. The cows are all black and white like placid harlequins; windmills of every size twirl lazy arms against the clouds; there seems to be a light outlining them. The occasional houses in a square of trees rise abruptly without warning from the horizon and there are steeples in the distance.

The reeds along the bank sway and bow as boats pass; and the little dark ducks hunt in and out among them for food. Now and then one finds a group of boys bathing, splashing and swimming, pink with cold. An uneven line of fishermen, perched on camp stools, while away the day in absorbed contemplation of the ends of their long untidy poles. Now and then along the towpath a couple on bicycles pass, the woman always with her hand on the man's arm; less often a carriage like a bird's-eye maple bandbox harnessed to a round shining horse, or a farm wagon painted apricot. The carriages seem to have come directly from some eighteenth-century romance. You cannot believe that they hide the heavy bodies of modern farmers and their good wives, who live in those occasional villages backing upon the water with a large display of children, the little girls dressed in red and boys with lavender shirts.

But it is primarily the highway of water that fascinates one. There is a charm in being above the land. On a still day the reflections of the willows and flowering reeds scarcely stir, except to lengthen the bright shadow of some slowly passing canal boat, whose brown patched sail has been visible for some time. If the wind is insufficient or contrary, the men pole it in primitive method or pull it in harness along the towpath, throwing themselves in painful jerks leaning far forward, with limp, hanging arms.

Sometimes one even sees women at this work. The blue denim shirts of the workers, the constrained lives of the family on board with their dogs and chickens, and the touches of brilliant color all suggest the Chinese. One appreciates modernity when one sees a barge chugging past, a boy carelessly asprawl at the tiller with that picturesque ease which one often finds in the heavy Dutch bodies, perhaps a heritage from their Spanish rulers. And sometimes, but more rarely, one sees the barge horses, with a man sitting astride them, as Anton Mauve used to paint them against a damp evening light.

But what harbors they all come into! Harbors where the mast jostle the forward leaning houses among trim trees, and the children looking from the decks see trim steps, and roadways of red brick, and bright shutters folding back from windows, with peering mirrors at every sill, and old people watchful behind their decorous curtains. Politically Speaking

By GEORGE E. HELMER

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SACRAMENTO, Calif., July 2—(UP)—Reports of a growing movement aimed at the recall of Gov. Frank F. Merriam did not disturb the usual calm attitude of the chief executive at he discussed the drive with press representatives.

"I regret things like that, of course," he said, "but there's nothing to do but fight it if it reaches major proportions."

"You don't look very worried about it," one news man remarked.

"Well, I don't feel very worried."

No one mentioned the constitutional provision which makes it mandatory for the state treasury to repay all campaign expenses of the incumbent if a recall fails.

This provision, officials believed, would make it practically impossible for a state officer to be recalled, unless he be so thoroughly unpopular that all manner of advertising, campaigning and promising of financial reward to supporters would fail to win him enough votes to keep him in office.

There is no limitation to the amount the incumbent could spend and if it cost $10,000,000 to win him a bare majority of votes, the state would have to repay him that amount. Of course, if he lost, he or his supporters would have to stand the expense.

There has been some talk in the Leon M Donihue's committee has as one of its aims the recall of the governor.

Merriam, however, said he believed the committee was conducting the investigation in a very businesslike manner and was sincere in its efforts to get to the bottom of the liquor scandals.

Attempts have been made, in more or less offhand manner, to link the governor with the irregularities by intimating that he accepted the advice of Mrs. Helen Werner, so-called queen of Los Angeles politicians, and that Mrs. Werner was instrumental in having Ray Edgar appointed to the board of equalization in place of Orfa Jean Shontz, who was given a judgeship.

It was known pretty generally here that Mrs. Werner was a frequent visitor at the governor's office about the time the Shontz-Edgar shift was made, but Merriam has denied she had any connection with the change or with patronage distribution in the south.

Members of the board of equalization were steaming with indignation when they returned here for the funeral of their assistant secretary, Elwood Squires, after waiting in Los Angeles two days without being called before the Donihue committee.

Fred E. Stewart, Chairman Richard E. Collins and John C. Corbett were subpenaed to appear before the committee. They could not go south immediately because the board was in session here. Donihue threatened to force their appearance. The board received permission from Attorney General U. S. Webb to declare a recess and answer the subpenas.

The trio went south, then, on Wednesday night and sat around Thursday and Friday waiting to be called. Friday night, they returned to Sacramento after telling Donihue they could not stay in Los Angeles until Monday. They planned to return there later.

"That's a fine system," snorted Collins. "Calling us down there and making us sit around without having an opportunity to testify. It costs the state money to transport three or four board members from Sacramento to Los Angeles and return. It seems to me the committee could have taken our testimony while we were down there.

"Why couldn't the Donihue committee come here? Three of the members live in the north, anyway, and it would be just as handy for them to come to Sacramento as for us to go south."

Someone in the corner of the board room ventured:

"No member of the committee is a candidate for district attorney up here. It wouldn't do them much good to conduct their hearings in Sacramento."

County boards of supervisors, represented by a committee which discussed the problem with Governor Merriam, refused flatly to have any connection with the State Relief Administration on the ground it was too wasteful in the distribution of money set aside for the dole.

Merriam has sought to reach an agreement on a plan to turn relief administration over to the counties, retaining the SRA in an advisory or directing capacity. The supervisors shouted "No", and insisted upon having the state department of social welfare direct the work.

TAHOE REGION NEWS

By Swanee

Interest runs high as the trial of George Polus, (waiter at Cal-Neva, arrested for serving whiskey and beer illegally on the California side of that famous resort to agents of the state board of equalization) at Tahoe City before Judge George Bliss on Thursday at 3 p. m. William Graham of Reno and James McKay, joint owners, plan to fight the charges on the ground that the California courts lack jurisdiction. In the meanwhile Polus is free on cash bail of $500.

District attorneys representing 58 counties in California gathered at Tahoe Tavern last week for their three-day convention with Fred L. Thomas, president of the association in charge of the meetings. Speakers during the convention included Mr. Thomas, Senator Jerrold Sewell, Hart Schrader, Jr., of Oakland and Attorney-general U. S. Webb.

A group of 40 olive processors from Corning to San Diego held their 15th annual technical conference at the Tavern at the same time as the district attorneys, using the Tavern's new green room. D. C. Gifford of San Diego, the vice president of the group, presided in the absence of C. E. Hazen, the president, from Corning. Professor W. V. Cruess of the fruit products laboratory of the University of California served as their counsellor.

The purpose of the conference was to study improved methods of culture and cullage, losses from injury to fruit during frost and pasteurization procedure. An interesting fact is that California produces all ripe olives grown in the world with the exception of a small acreage in Arizona. Mediterranean countries produce only green olives and products obtained from them. A cutting bee, which consists of cutting olives procured at random from retailers in Chicago, San Francisco and Los Angeles, was held with four members acting as judges. W. W. Tuggle, L. F. Pratt, C. E. Lachele and Professor W. V. Cruess.

A convention was held at Chamber's Lodge over the week end when 25 members of the Alpha Delta Thetas met and enjoyed three days of Tahoe recreation.

Prominent persons sojourning at Chambers' included Mr. and Mrs. Philip Douke, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mitchell, Dr. Oscar Hauge, all of Sacramento and Mr. and Mrs. George Atkins and Mrs. Rosa Caluss of Woodland.

Chambers' Lodge has recently undergone improvements with an extension being added to the dining room, which is attractively furnished with red leather modernistic chairs and pale green venetian shades. The newly erected pier and modernized club room on the wharf now has hardwood floor and leather club chairs and cocktail tables where groups gather for orchestra music from 4 until 6 p. m. and from 9 until 11 p. m. daily. Six new kaiaks have been added to the fleet of pleasure boats at the lodge this year.

An unusual accident which very nearly proved fatal to one young man, occurred on last Saturday. Two young vacationists manned their row boat with black sails of some sort and proceeded to enjoy themselves all afternoon on the lake where a brisk breeze was blowing. According to eye witnesses one of the boats capsized near Dollar's estate several hundred yards from shore, about 5 in the evening. The young man's companion, about a mile distant, seemed unable to maneuver his boat around to his friend's assistance, and it was reported that he managed to cling to the overturned boat for a period of more than three hours, yelling lustily. About 8:30 that night he was rescued by others in a speed boat who had heard his cries.

Gene Walker, highway patrolman, commandeered boats from the Dollar estate but others reached the stranded man first. He was believed to be a resident of Tahoe Vista or Brockway and was about 19 years old, but his name could not be learned. He suffered no serious effects from his prolonged immersion.

An accident occurred at the Southern Pacific crossing near the telephone office on Sunday morning early when a car driven by Clay Herrold, 22, of Piedmont, living near Homewood, traveling with excessive speed, skidded off the highway, crashed into the car of Bill Myers, who had pulled off the highway to let the speeding car pass, and then struck a group of trees. The driver received a cut on his lip, and his companion, Ben Reed, 20, of Piedmont, received a laceration on his forehead. Both were given first aid treatment by Gene Walker, highway patrolman, who investigated the accident. Myers was uninjured. Young Herrold was given a citation for reckless driving.

No trace of the miscreants has been found to date.

Vice Commodore Edwin Letts Oliver, where arrangements were made for the summer season's activities. The annual meeting for the election of officers of the club will be held on Sunday, July 5, at Tahoe Tavern, to be followed by a luncheon. The first regatta of the season will take place on July 12, at 1:00 a. m. off the Tavern pier. A regulation which will bear repetition for those interested is that which declares all boats over 16 feet in length must be re-registered at the Custom House Motor Boat division in San Francisco this year when new numbers will be assigned. A record luncheon attendance is anticipated and a lively racing season is foreseen at Tahoe.

J. Gordon Allard is not ony assistant manager, under Walter Rounsevel this year at Tahoe Tavern, but a member of Culbertson's National Studios of New York City. A skilful exponent of contract bridge, his past commendable record highly qualifies him as a teacher and lecturer. Mr. Allard has lectured to gatherings at Bullock's and the Ambassador hotel in Los Angeles, in Santa Barbara, at the Ojai Valley Country club, at Arrowhead springs, at the Exclusive Del Mar club in Santa Monica and many other well known hotels and resorts.

Starting on Wednesday evening, July 8, at 8:00 p. m. Mr. Allard will deliver a series of four evening contract bridge lectures in the Tavern's new green room. His first topic, one of the foremost complications of the bridge game, will be "New Asking Bids." Having served as host to Eli Culbertson during his recent four-day stay in Los Angeles, he received an even keener insight into the newer angles of the world famous Culbertson system. He has made an enviable reputation for himself among bridge enthusiasts wherever he has appeared. A nominal charge will be made and classes will be limited so those interested are urged to call Tahoe City 300 and place their reservations early.

From time to time during the past few years, the citizens of some California city have petitioned Bank of America to extend its services into that community. In this way, many of Bank of America's branches have come into being—at the request of the communities they serve.

ered in abolishing the SRA, officials pointed out, lay in the fact that quite a number of persons drawing good salaries there brought heavy pressure to retain their jobs. In addition, the SRA was set up by the legislature, and could not be broken down completely by the governor, although it would be possible for him to eliminate all except the relief commission which could continue as an advisory board.

1935 Government Cost Is Highest on Record

SACRAMENTO, Cal., July 2—(UP)—The greatest increase ever recorded in the cost of government in California last year when expenditures of cities, counties and state jumped more than $111,000,000 to a record high of $904,431,784.

Controller Ray L. Riley revealed today in his annual report of financial transactions that the state and its major subdivisions were almost unanimous in boosting expenses, largely because of unemployemnt relief and increased expenditures for schools.

Expenses for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1935 were more than $111,000,000 above the $792,954,475 spent the year before. The state government paid out $351,876,638, compared with $253,385,221 in 1934; the counties, exclusive of San Francisco, spent $324,596,461 as against $320,405,665; the cities, including San Francisco, increased their expenditures from $219,263,589 to $227,958,684.

Unemployemnt relief and increased expenditures for education, coupled with the improvement of institutions and an increase in the allowance for social welfare work were the major factors responsible for the big jump in the state's expenses.

Counties spent $115,461,396 for education alone, an increase of $2,500,000 over the amount spent for that purpose in 1934. Charities and collections cost $43,995,105, more than $12,000,000 under the 1934 allowance. Expenditures for highways, general government, protection to person and property, interest and redemption of debt remained about the same from year to year.

The addition of utility property to local tax rolls and the consequent widening of the tax base for local taxation, which was expected to produce lower tax rates, was largely nullified by the tremendous increase in the cost of government, Riley said.

"In 16 counties, the taxpayer was presented with a higher tax bill than in 1934, notwithstanding the additional payments made by the utilities which were expected to be a material factor in lowering the tax levies made by the county governments," the controller added.

Army Flyer Succeeds in Blind Flight

TIOGA PASS ROAD OPENED TO TRAFFIC

SACRAMENTO, Cal., July 2—(UP)—Another trans-Sierra route has been made available to motorists with the recent opening to traffic of the Tioga pass road from Yosemite to Mono Lake.

Despite the fact snowfall last winter reached record depths along the highway, little snow now remains over the pass, it was reported.

Plans for reconstructing the narrow, winding mountain road into a modern, high-gear highway are proceeding as rapidly as appropriations and weather conditions permit. The route is expected to be shortened by about 12 miles with the completion of the Crane Flat-Whitewolf cutoff this year.

August 15 Deadline for Artists' Entries at Fair

SACRAMENTO, Cal., July 2—(UP)—California artists planning to exhibit at the state fair this year must submit their entries by August 15, officials of the annual exposition announced here.

Paintings to be displayed will be selected August 24 by a jury named by the fair directors. No pictures exhibited at previous state fairs will be accepted.

Exhibits will be housed in the fireproof art gallery under constant police protection, Director Horace E. Thomas, Marysville, chairman of the art division, said.

The fair will be held September 5 to 14 inclusive.

Ford Motor Company Observes 33rd Birthday

The Ford Motor company passed its thirty-third birthday last week. In observance of the event, William J. Cameron, Ford's voice on the air, called attention to the pertinent facts about the operation of big business and the progress of the Ford Motor company since its humble beginnings in 1903.

"In 33 years the company has exchanged 24,500,000 automobiles and other products for $12,951,338,028." Cameron said. "It has paid out $12,109,321,884 for materials, labor and taxes, leaving $842,016,144. Deducting from this the always current obligation of $60,000,000 for commitments made, and wages due, there remains $782,016,144 as the so-called profit for the work of 33 years."

Reducing this to handier figures, Cameron pointed out that the average profit for each car over 33 years has been only $20. Each Ford purchaser has contributed slightly less than 66 cents a year to the Ford Motor company profit in this time.

"Critics of profits of big business, which aggregately seem vary large, always fail to see the point that the major profit is in the article produced, and in the legitimate exchange the user's profit is always bigger than the maker's," declared Cameron.

Great as the values are that have flowed toward the Ford Motor company during these years, immensely greater values have flowed from it, it was said. It is seen from the observance of 33 years that 94 per cent of the money that came into the Ford Motor company immediately went out again as money, and much of the other 6 per cent went into improvements and economies for the public benefit.

"But it is in the creation of wealth that the Ford Motor company does a great public service," continued Cameron. "For each 100 per cent of raw or unfinished material values that come into our factories, 150 to 300 per cent in material values go out again. This is the way true wealth is created."

JUDGE CHAMPIONS YOUNG BATH DODGER

SACRAMENTO, Cal., July 2—(UP)—Small boys who dislike a daily bath were championed in a recent decision by Superior Judge Martin I. Welsh.

Deciding a case involving the custody of the 13-year-old son of a divorced couple, the court over-ruled the mother's objection to the boy staying with his father because the lad would get a bath but once a week.

"While with the father," said Judge Welsh, "boy-like, he was following the old established custom observed by the best of men when boys by taking a bath once a week, and Saturday was the favorite day. Many are still with us and are living witnesses that the custom was not an unhealthy one, and while I believe that the daily bath is better for one's health and comfort, the objection is not a sufficient one to deprive the father of the custody of his son during certain periods of the year."

Single Tax Would Increase Land Taxes Five Times

SACRAMENTO, Cal., July 2—(UP)—Substitution of a single tax on land for the present sales tax, as proposed in a constitutional amendment to be voted on next November, would increase Nevada county's land tax from the current $3.20 to $15.56 per $100 valuation, according to opponents of the proposal.

This estimate, prepared by the California Association Against "Single Tax," was based on records of the valuation department of the state board of equalization, the rates determined by adding the new tax load to be placed on land to the present tax load.

The average state tax rate on land would jump from $3.42 to $11.25 under the proposed change in the tax setup, it was estimated.

In a further explanation of their stand against the proposal, the association said:

"The 'single tax' act would abolish outright the state sales tax and all other forms of sales taxes, liquor taxes and probably the truck tax and gasoline tax, placing the entire burden on land.

"In addition, 'single tax' reduces personal property taxes and taxes on improvements, one-fifth each year until they are entirely abolished—again placing the burden on land.

"During the first year, this would add a minimum of $305,234,574 to taxes levied on land; during succeeding years, greater amounts."

The association also called attention to records showing that a "single tax" proposal has been defeated at seven state elections in the past, and that the current proposal, in addition to repealing the sales tax, would repeal the state property tax limitation provision to assertedly "make the sky the limit."

STABLIZATION OF MILK MARKETING IS SOUGHT

SACRAMENTO, Calif., July 2—(UP)—Two hearings looking toward stablization and milk marketing plans in southern California will be held in the near future, A. A. Brock, state director of agriculture, announced here.

The first meeting will be held in Los Angeles July 8. At that time Brock will receive evidence for or against the proposed plan for the Los Angeles area, under which milk distributors would be required to pay producers at the rate of not less than 58 cents per pound of milk fat.

The second hearing, dealing with a marketing plan for the San Bernardino-Riverside area, will be held Riverside July 9. Under terms of this proposal, milk producers would receive a minimum of 60 cents per pound of milk fat.

County Bonded Indebtedness Reaches New High in 1935

SACRAMENTO, Cal., July 2—(UP)—The bonded indebtedness of California counties reached a new high of $467,000,000 in 1935, according to a survey just completed by State Controller Ray L. Riley.

The bonded debt, Riley said, included school and other special district obligations.

In Nevada county the bonded indebtedness was listed as totaling $207,778 last year, including $116,500 in school district bonds. The remainder was made up of special and assessment bonds.

Of the total bonded indebtedness of the 58 counties, general county bonds totaled nearly $200,000,000, school district bonds were a good second, amounting to $193,000,000, and special and assessment district bonds added up to nearly $75,000,000, Riley's report stated.

"Los Angeles county had the highest county debt, exceeding $150,000,000. At the opposite end of the scale were Mono and Trinity counties with no bonded debt. San Francisco, the sole city and county, has a grand total of $173,000,000, but indebtedness for municipal functions is included in that figure and not in others," Riley explained.

The report pointed out that two-thirds of the Los Angeles debt is for schools, and most of the remainder is for special assessment districts, only $6,000,000 being outstanding in general county bonds.

The report listed 16 counties which have no general county bonds unpaid, including Amador, Calaveras, Humboldt, Inyo, Mariposa, Mono, Nevada, Placer, Plumas, Shasta, Sierra, Siskiyou, Solano, Trinity, Tuolumne and Yuba.

Mono and Trinity are the only counties without a school bond indebtedness.

Bogus Patrol Officers Are Soliciting Funds

SACRAMENTO, Cal., July 2—(UP)—California business and professional men today were warned by Geo. F. Moynahan, secretary of the California Association of Highway Patrolmen, to be on the lookout for a bunco ring soliciting for advertising space purportedly for the Association's yearbook.

Moynahan said hundreds of dollars already have been paid out to solicitors attired as patrolmen and with apparently genuine credentials.

"But they are swindlers," Moynahan said. "We have given them no authorization to represent the association, nor have they any right to pose as officers."

The secretary said solicitations have been made in the name of the California highway patrol, and the California Highway Patrolmen, in addition to the association. He suggested that in cases of doubt, the nearest highway patrol office or local authorities should be notified.

Collection Agencies Show Continued Business Gain

SACRAMENEO June 25 —(UP)—An increase of 10 per cent in business during the last year was reported by the Pacific Coast Association of Collection Agencies at its annual convention, recently concluded here.

Secretary W. W. Clarke, Spokane, Wash., said the organization had gained 15 new members during the year, bringing the membership total to 125 agencies.

Last year the postoffice department estimated that more than 20,000,000 pieces of mail weighing more than 7,500,000 pounds were franked.
